The Department of Zoology, University of Calcutta

The Department of Zoology, University of Calcutta, was founded in 1919, with renowned entomologist Prof. S. N. Moulik as its 1st professor. The history of the department has been enriched by the contribution of innumerable eminent zoologists. The faculty and research scholars of the this multi-faceted department carry out cutting-edge research in the fields of immunology, genetics, disease biology, cancer biology, endocrinology, ecology, wildlife biology, entomology, and fishery sciences. The pillar of post-graduate studies in Zoology, the department also boasts of a centenary heritage zoological museum, that houses some very rare specimens collected over time.

Vision of a2i2 2023

After the grand success of the 1st Academia to Industry Interface Conclave held on 11th to 13th of March 2023, comes the 2nd Academia to Industry Interface Conclave aims to continue to bridge the gap between the academia and the industry. The 2nd conclave will include more detailed sessions on business building, funding and investor round tables. The conference will also focus on the importance of multidisciplinary in science and technology.

Mission of a2i2 2023

1. To give academics the idea on how to take their translatable idea to the community (scale-up, accreditations, regulations, IPR, funding).
2. To give students idea about job opportunities and necessary training needed for the industry.
3. To give the industry access to strong S&T, quality control, skilled manpower from the academia.
4. To connect S&T with the real problems of the society, via community linkage.
5. To bring start-ups and MSMEs (involved in biotechnology, healthcare, pharmaceuticals), who do not have the opportunity to flourish by themselves, to the forefront.
